MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS INDUSTRY REVIEW

For the six months ended 30 June 2016 (the “Period”), the global economy remained volatile and sluggish in its growth momentum, which was marked by several developments: the United States just entered a rate-hike cycle which has casted uncertainty over the country’s economic growth; Brexit changed the European Union’s economic landscape; and emerging economies were slowing down. For the first half of 2016, China’s economy grew by 6.7%, which was the country’s slowest gross domestic product growth in seven years. To cope with the complicated economic environment at home and abroad, the Central Government stepped up the supply-side reform and moderately stimulated the overall demand. Meanwhile, two pivotal national strategies, “Made in China 2025” and the “One Belt, One Road” initiative, have presented new business opportunities to the manufacturing industry and added impetus to the development of all the aspects throughout the entire value chain of the industry.

During the Period, the global handset market continued to slow down. According to statistics from IDC, a globally recognized market research institution, the global smartphone shipments increased slightly by 0.2% year on year to 678 million units in the first half of 2016, which was the lowest year on year growth rate ever recorded. In China, new models of smartphones launched by domestic handset manufacturers gained increasing popularity among consumers at home and abroad due to their outstanding performance and appearance. Sales of such new models grew rapidly and resulted in their significantly increased share of the global market. Of the top 10 global mobile phone brands, seven are Chinese, which jointly took up nearly 42% of the global market share. According to the information released by China Academy of Information and Communication Technology, the country’s smartphone shipments increased by 13.0% year on year to 235 million units in the first half of 2016, indicating that China remained the largest smartphone market in the world.

Regarding the use of materials, metal casings have gained widespread popularity among consumers because of their sound mechanic performance and outstanding appearance. The range of applications of metal components in smartphones were widening and the market penetration of metal components continued to rise. This has led to a growing market for such metal components, bringing both a structural change to and new opportunities for the smartphone industry, which has been slowing down. Suppliers who have comprehensive technologies and a base of diverse customers have huge potential for growth.

BUSINESS REVIEW

BYD Electronic (International) Company Limited (“BYD Electronic” or the “Company”) and its subsidiaries (collectively referred to as the “Group”) is a supplier of handset components and assembly services in China with leading technological strengths and cost competitiveness. The Company adopts an operating strategy of providing one-stop services with strong vertical integration capabilities, and provides handset manufacturers of different brands with various services including the manufacture of handset components (such as casings and structural parts) and handset modules as well as handset design and assembly. It also provides such services as product design, parts manufacturing and assembly for manufacturers of other electronic products. During the Period, the Group’s sales revenue increased by approximately 61.97% year on year to approximately RMB15,484 million, and profit attributable to the shareholders of the Company increased by 32.42% year on year to approximately RMB604 million.

Consumers have had ever higher requirements for the texture and appearance of smartphones’ casings in recent years so that handset manufacturers have been using more metal components and making their products thinner and lighter. There is a growing trend towards the use of metal casings in handsets with original design. Metal casings outperform plastic casings in terms of adaptability to thinner casings, heat dissipation and durability and as such, they are being used in large numbers by smartphone manufacturers of both local and foreign brands. Leveraging on its extensive experience in producing metal components over the years, leading technological strength, well-developed techniques for processing and cost competitiveness, the Group endeavored to ramp up its production capacity and expand its customer base so as to capitalize on the rapid growth of the metal component industry and effectively boost its revenue from the metal components business. In respect of its assembly business, the Group secured orders for smartphone assembly in the form of electronics manufacturing services (“EMS”) from leading smartphone brands. This resulted in satisfactory growth in its assembly business, and enhanced customer relationships while stimulating customers’ demand for the Group’s other components.

As to the customers, the Group continued to enhance its business relationships with renowned domestic and overseas handset manufacturers while actively seeking business from new customers at home and abroad with the aim of improving its customer mix and diversifying its customer base. During the Period, the Group secured orders from a number of Korean and domestic well-known handset brands to manufacture their mid-range and high-end flagship models. This contributed to significant growth in sales revenue from the Group’s metal components business.

As a leading manufacturer in handset component and assembly sectors, the Group continued to further develop the original design manufacturing (ODM) business for smartphones, tablets and other mobile smart terminals and provide one-stop services that encompass complete product design, components manufacturing and full product assembly services. During the Period, the Group stepped up the development of its automotive electronics business in a bid to add new impetus to its sustainable development.

FUTURE STRATEGY

In the second half of the year, the prospect of the global economy is grim and complicated. Specifically, China will continue with its economic restructuring. In the light of a sluggish global economy, IDC revised downwards its forecast on growth rate in global smartphone shipments in 2016 by nearly a half to 3.1%. According to forecast of IDC report, the global smartphone market will maintain a moderate growth and the growth in smartphone shipments will continue to decelerate in the next five years. Despite a slowdown in the market and increasingly fierce competition, China’s local handset brands are expected to continue to improve their market shares at home and abroad through innovation and technological upgrading.

In face of intense market competition, major handset brands are proactively seeking to enhance their brands and expanding their market shares and influence. It is expected that more handset models will be released in the second half of the year. The Group will continue to consolidate its sound business relationships with major smartphone manufacturers to seize the opportunities arising from their releases of new models. It will try to secure more new orders for mid-range and high-end smartphones and related high-end consumer electronics. Meanwhile, the Group will continue to develop business with new customers and expand revenue sources while optimizing its customer mix and increasing its market share. In addition, with its advantages in technologies, business scale and industry experience, the Group will continue to expand its EMS business by making efforts to join the supply chain of more leading manufacturers, thereby increasing its revenue and profit sources.

To cope with fierce market competition, handset manufacturers will tend to launch more new models with metal casings to make the products more appealing and to satisfy customers’ higher requirements. As leading international handset manufacturers become more involved in the mass production of mid-range and high-end flagship handset models, it is expected that the Group’s metal component business will maintain rapid growth in the future. In the second half of the year, the Group will continue to focus on its metal component business and widen the range of applications of metal casings and metal structural products. It will also improve production quality through technological innovation so as to enhance its competitiveness and meet the market’s increasing demand.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

In the future, BYD Electronic will adhere to its core values and positioning, keep an eye on the market's movements, improve its research and development capability and raise the standards of its technology so as to deliver more cost-competitive products with assured quality to customers. It will consolidate and develop strategic partnerships with its domestic and foreign partners while actively developing its businesses in the relevant markets to capture emerging opportunities and expand its market share. Meanwhile, the Group will proactively boost its overall comprehensive competitiveness and enhance its market influence in various areas to lay a solid foundation for its long-term development with an aim of generating good returns to shareholders.

The Plaintiffs discontinued the June 2007 Action on 5 October 2007 with the effect that the June 2007 Action has been wholly discontinued against all the Defendants named in the action and this finally disposed of the June 2007 Action without any liability to the Defendants. On the same day, the Plaintiffs initiated a new set of legal proceedings in the Court (the “October 2007 Action”). The Defendants named in the October 2007 Action are the same as the Defendants in the June 2007 Action, and the claims made by the Plaintiffs in the October 2007 Action are based on the same facts and the same grounds in the June 2007 Action. The remedies sought by the Plaintiffs in the October 2007 Action include an injunction restraining the Defendants from using the alleged confidential information, an order for the disgorgement of profit made by the Defendants through the use of the confidential information, damages based on the loss suffered by the Plaintiffs and exemplary damages. The total damages sought by the Plaintiffs in the October 2007 Action have not been quantified.

On 2 October 2009 the Defendants instituted a counter-action against Foxconn International Holdings Limited and certain of its affiliates for their intervention, by means of illegal measures, in the operations involving the Company and certain of its subsidiaries, collusions, written and verbal defamation, and the economic loss as a result of the said activities.

Management has assessed that the fair values of short term deposits, cash and cash equivalents, pledged deposits, trade and bills receivables, trade and bills payables, financial assets included in prepayments, deposits and other receivables, financial liabilities included in other payables, amounts due from/to subsidiaries, amounts due from/to the ultimate holding company and the immediate holding company approximate to their carrying amounts largely due to the short term maturities of these instruments.

The Group's corporate finance team headed by the finance manager is responsible for determining the policies and procedures for the fair value measurement of financial instruments. The corporate finance team reports directly to the chief financial officer and the audit committee. At each reporting date, the corporate finance team analyses the movements in the values of financial instruments and determines the major inputs applied in the valuation. The valuation is reviewed and approved by the chief financial officer. The valuation process and results are discussed with the audit committee twice a year for interim and annual financial reporting.

The fair values of the financial assets are included at the amount at which the instrument could be exchanged in a current transaction between willing parties, other than in a forced or liquidation sale.

The fair values of the loan to the ultimate holding company have been calculated by discounting the expected future cash flows using rates currently available for instruments with similar terms, credit risk and remaining maturities.
